COURSE DESCRIPTION

To manage employees effectively, building a foundation for understanding fundamentals and dynamics of human behavior in organization and developing leadership are essential. A focus of this course will be on how individuals, groups and organizational contexts would impact effectiveness, efficiency and success of organizations dealing with global issues. Students will acquire perspectives of how individuals, teams and the entire organization would behave and how an individual employee may experience, interpret, function effectively in organizations with diversity.

The leadership component of this course aims at equipping students with an opportunity to critically appraise and reflect upon the subject of organizational leadership in the global context. An emphasis is placed on drawing real-world relevance in the practice and development of leadership for aspiring executives. In addition to studying the essential theories and models, course participants will acquire the necessary skills in addressing the complexity and non-mechanistic nature of the practice of management on becoming strategic leaders in modern enterprises.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. To learn and apply scientific knowledge of human behaviors to global management contexts.
2. To learn recent important issues of global management.
3. To learn and apply the fundamental management frameworks, theories, and models of modern leadership.

MEANS/PROCESSES FOR STUDENT FEEDBACK ON COURSE

- ☐ Online response via Moodle site
- ☐ Others: SFTL (please specify)

COURSE POLICY (e.g. plagiarism, academic honesty, attendance, etc.)

An orderly learning environment is extremely important for this course. Disruptive behaviors are absolutely unacceptable. Academic dishonesty includes cheating, plagiarism, unauthorized collaboration, falsifying academic records, and any act designed to avoid participating honestly in the learning process. Any such dishonesty will result in an F grade.

ADDITIONAL COURSE INFORMATION (e.g. e-learning platforms & materials, penalty for late assignments, etc.)

No late assignment will be accepted.
Lecture notes and self-learning materials will be uploaded on Moodle.
Good questions and discussions on Moodle will be awarded participation grades.

Participation (20%)

Students will be graded on individual participation as well as contribution to “Group Reports” on assigned in-class discussion issues. At the end of each lecture, please inform the teaching assistant of your participation in lecture.

Group Formation

1. Form own group by the end of the third lecture.
2. There should be a maximum of 12 groups with approximately the same size.
3. Groups should be of about equal size.
4. Those who can't form/join a group need to let TA know ASAP, and be assigned to a group by the TA.
5. TA's assignment is final, and no change of group membership will be entertained.
6. In case of need and as the last resort, peer assessment form will be provided on request.
7. Groups must maintain this group setting on all activities held in our course including but not limited to group work, class exercises and ad hoc presentations.
8. Submit the Group Registration form

Assessment 2 Group Presentation (40%) – Last 2 Lectures

You are required to select a company either in the form of a business case or information your group collects and provide an analyze of issues of current global management. You should:

- Identify the global management issues associated with the selected company.
- Address the issues by applying the knowledge gained in class with group effort.
- Research the selected company including but not limited to its background information from possible sources, such as the official website, annual reports, cases, newspapers, or databases.
- Provide original and critical analyses of the global management issues in the focal company.
- Suggest appropriate recommendations in the form of managerial intervention for the company in handling the issues and challenges identified for the company.
- A company can be analyzed by only 1 group. If there are multiple groups interested in analyzing the same company, choice is based on first-come-first-served basis.

Each group will conduct a 20-25 minutes presentation. At the end of each team's presentation, there will be a short question and answer (Q&A) session, with duration subject to available time, during which the team will address questions from the class.

Submit your PPT via Moodle, one PPT per group and all work will be checked for plagiarism via Turnitin.

All groups must submit a black-and-white hardcopy of their PPT, with 4 slides placed horizontally on one page, at the beginning of the presentation lectures.

The presentation will be graded over the following criteria:

1. Power of the analysis and recommendations
2. Clarity of the issues and challenges identified
3. Professionalism including, but not limited to structure, flow and delivery of the presentation

4. Comprehensiveness in content coverage
5. Articulation of critical issues and the application of knowledge gained in class
6. Integration of OB theories and contents in class
7. Quality of interactions with the audience

Assessment 3 Individual Paper (40%)

- Submission Deadline: 1 week after last lecture
- All papers must be sent via Moodle and will be subject to Turnitin checks for potential plagiarism
- The filename must your full name in the form of “Surname name-First Name-ID”, for example, “Chen-Dawen1234569”.

Format requirement:

Maximum of six (6) pages, type written professional report in Times New Roman 12 and double-spacing. If you cite a study, make sure you include a reference to be an appendix at the end of the paper. Harvard/APA referencing style is recommended but be consistent with the style throughout the reference section.

Select one of the following for your individual paper:

1. Diversity and inclusion are important global management issues. Identify a diversity and inclusion issue in a nation of your choice (e.g. gender, racial or age in France). Write an essay on the current state of affairs of this diversity issue and how this issue can be dealt with in a university or workplace setting. Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.
2. Identify key components of Paul McGinley’s management of his golf team. Theoretically and practically, why are these components important? What is the relevance of a golf team to global management? What is your framework for managing diverse teams? Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.
3. Andrew Thornton proposes the “Lead by Heart” approach to management and it has been suggested that similar approaches are among the trends of global management. What are the key components of this approach? Why are the components important? What is the relevance of a small supermarket to global management? What is your framework for motivating people? Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.
4. Why are ethics, professionalism, corporate social responsibility, sustainability and equality issues important to capitalistic systems? What went wrong with our system? Critically examine Food Angel’s approach to resolving a poverty and sustainability problem. What can be applied to individuals working for a profit-oriented business organization? Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.
5. Modern leadership emphasizes, among other capabilities, identification of opportunities and understanding of oneself. Critically examine Miyata’s accomplishment as an entrepreneur and his decision to step down as the CEO of SmarHR. Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.

6. Modern leaders are charged to lead innovation. Critically examine factors of success in innovation in Mapxus. Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.
7. Modern leaders are expected to manage sustainability issues. Critically examine effectiveness of Redress in dealing with sustainability. Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.
8. Ethical issues are at the forefront of leadership nowadays. Critically examine the Citibank case and identify organizational and personal barriers to ethical behaviour in business organizations. Be sure to discuss personal takeaways.

In addition to the assessment criteria stated in the course outline, the following guidelines will be used to grade your work:

Format / Style / Use of Language/Structure/Logic/Sequence	30%
Content/Analysis/Synthesis/Relevance/ Research effort	40%
Demonstration of academic flair / insights / Use of reference & Literature	30%
