COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course provides students with a systematic and step-by-step guide to the application of theoretical frameworks to the effective design and implementation of global marketing activities across national boundaries and within foreign countries. The course shows students how they can easily make use of publicly available databases to understand different markets in a global context. Without the requirement of any prior sophisticated knowledge in statistics, students will learn how they can gain deep insights into global marketing decision making through easy-to-implement data search and basic data analysis. Real-world marketing cases and examples will be discussed to help students understand how they can make theory-inspired and data-informed decisions regarding market selection and marketing mix design.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

This course aims to help students learn how to develop a global perspective when formulating marketing strategies and adapt marketing decisions according to specific characteristics of different country markets. Students will learn how to collect data and apply theoretical frameworks about global marketing to real-world business issues through lectures, case studies, and group projects.
